Trees protect soil from erosion, reduce surface run-off and slow large floods.
- Support agriculture: →
Trees improve soil quality and prevent soil erosion as well as creating shade and shelter for livestock.
- Combat wood fuel: →
The carbon emitted in burning wood is balanced out by what is taken in by the growing tree.
- Improve health of soil being: →
Woods and trees reduce air pollution and help cities cool. They are also the best way to reduce noise.
- Conservation of wildlife: →
Trees and deadwood are habitat for countless species. They provide wood and wildlife habitat to animals.
- Build resilience: →
A good mix of native trees increases landscape resilience, agricultural and human communities.

- A single tree produces about 117 kg of oxygen in a year. That means ten mature trees can supply enough oxygen to a family of four.
- Trees prevent an acre from eroding about 2.6 tons of carbon dioxide.
- Trees are also a source of natural sound insulation and help filter carbon dust, soil and water pollution.
- The forest ecosystem provides production, shelter, water, fuel, and food security for over a billion people.
- It cost 52 trillion dollars to create oxygen for 6 months for all human beings on earth. Trees do it free.

Plant trees

* Protecting Trees / Human beings on earth: ↓

- Tree is the best protector of earth and human being on earth.
- In ancient time, man practices like (Tearing of, defoliation, debilitation, making wooden furniture, etc.) human cut trees.
